On account of the decreased valuation of the town, and the consequent diminution of the public tax, which forms the basis of the school tax, there has been a deficiency in the amount of school money the past year of more than one hundred dollars. This deficiency has been made up by the unexpended balance of the dog tax, which opportunely became available. As no more surplus can arise from this source the ensuing year, the town must either vote to raise a sufficient sum to supply the deficit, or the schools must be curtailed to meet the exigencies of the situation. That a majority or even a small minority of the legal voters of the town would be willing to see our schools thus crippled and their usefulness impaired to save a small sum, that, when raised by taxation, would bear lightly upon the individual tax-payer, we do not for a moment entertain. We therefore urge the consideration of this question, and the importance of proper action on the same.

REPORT OF THE SCHOOLS.

DIVISION 1.

The summer term was taught by Miss Grace E. Downes, of Francestown, N. H. She was retained here at the request of parents and scholars, with also the approval of the Board. Our confidence in her fitness for the situation was not misplaced. The term was highly profitable.

The High School, which took the place of the division school in the fall, was under the charge of Miss Mary A. Crosby, of this town. It is sufficient to say that Miss Crosby here sustained her already enviable reputation as a teacher, securing and retaining the confidence and respect of parents and pupils. A portion of the scholars in Division 2 attended this school; and our only regret is that more outside of the division did not avail themselves of the opportunity.

DIVISION 2.

The summer term was taught by Miss Cora M. Kimball, of Hillsborough, N. H. This was Miss Kimball's first experience, but, notwithstanding, she evinced remarkable tact, and conducted her little school to a very successful termination. No fall term.

DIVISION 3.

There was only one term—in the fall—taught by Miss Carrie L. Barker, of Henniker, N. H. Miss Barker is one of the teachers with rare accomplishments that are seldom found among teachers in country schools; and we feel that we were more than fortunate in securing her services in this school.

DIVISION 4.

Summer term—taught by Miss Venetta D. Brown, of Washington, N. H. Miss Brown had already established a reputation as a teacher before coming to this division, and lost no time in organizing her school, which is the largest in town. We commend parents, pupils and teacher for their harmonious action, which crowned the efforts of the latter with success. Miss Brown has chosen a new vocation—matrimony, we believe. Success to her in her undertaking.

The fall term, under the charge of Miss Grace E. Downes, was a continuation, under the same happy auspices, of the successful results that have attended every term of school in this division for the last three years. Several of the parents have expressed the desire to have her services retained as teacher for the ensuing year.

DIVISION 5.

To select and procure the services of the right teacher for this school has given us more care than that attended with all the other divisions. We were fortunate in obtaining the services of Miss Mary A. Crosby as teacher for the summer term, which, with one exception, perhaps, was the most profitable one for the last three years.

The fall term was taught by Miss Annie M. Morse, of Frankestown, N. H. Miss Morse brought with her excellent educational qualifications for her work and some experience as a teacher. Probably no teacher labored harder in the school room. A little more discipline combined with her method of instruction would have produced results equal to those of the summer term. The examination showed the school very orderly, and considerable improvement in the various branches.

DIVISION 6.

The summer and fall terms were under the charge of the same teacher, Miss Ida Brown, of Henniker, N. H. Both terms were very successful. Miss Brown combines with her excellent qualifications as a teacher a natural love for children, and these qualities seldom fail to insure success.

DIVISION 7.

Summer term taught by Miss Cora L. Peaslee, of Hillsborough, N. H., with credit to herself; with a success highly satisfactory to all interested in the school.

Fall term taught by Cora M. Kimball. She evinced high qualities as a teacher; and the closing examination was such as to prove that the school had been one of more than ordinary success.

Note.—For the number of scholars, length of term, etc., in each school, reference may be had to table on last page.

We have undertaken, for the past three years, the task of furnishing text books to the schools, at the prices billed to us by the publishers. These prices are far below the usual rates charged by dealers—generally one-half those rates. This matter of text books has given us more trouble and care than all our other duties combined. We have cheerfully attended to this service for the benefit of the scholars and the schools. We hope, therefore, that the parents and guardians will appreciate our labors in this direction, and not find fault when the collector presents his bill for payment.

To many of the youth of our town, the public school is the only source of education, before entering upon the duties and business cares of life. We hope, therefore, that scholars of both sexes that do not intend to take an academical course of study will avail themselves of the golden opportunity offered them at their doors, and continue, when practicable, to attend school beyond the age required by law. At the same time, we deprecate the custom, altogether too prevalent in this town, of scholars leaving off study as soon as they arrive at the age when the law does not compel their attendance. The young can acquire more knowledge and make more rapid advancement in study in one year after the age of fifteen than by years of attendance at an earlier age. We call the attention of parents and guardians to this subject hoping they will encourage the children under their charge to attend school as long as possible and convenient, thus laying the foundation for deep and lasting acquirements that will follow them to maturity and old age.

We have spared no pains to secure the services of able and competent teachers. They have entered upon their duties with the energy and enthusiasm that has insured success. Never have our schools, in our own experience and observation, been more prosperous, and their standard of excellence raised so high, as during the year just closed. For this happy and very desirable condition of the same, we are indebted to the industry and faithfulness of the teachers in their work, and also the co-operation, sympathy and forbearance of the parents, pupils and others interested in the schools. These obligations we cheerfully and thankfully acknowledge; as all efforts on our part alone would have been futile and inadequate to secure such good results as it has been our fortune to obtain for the schools under our charge.
